Plenary I: Stories of the Self and the Other: Jewish and Christian Perspectives

Moderator: Deborah Weissman (Jerusalem)

Speakers: František Abel (Slovakia), Peter Dubovsky (Slovakia), Ruth Langer (USA)

This plenary session will explore how Jews and Christians express their religious identities as the overarching story of their community and how their history shapes the way they speak of the people of other religions, both positively and negatively. Particular attention will be given to strategies to avoid lethal and destructive stories and to nurture life-affirming stories instead. Furthermore, the speakers will reflect on the process of revising one’s sacred stories in the light of deeper interreligious understanding. In other words, how does the new relationship between Jews and Christians affect the interpretation and embodiment of one’s “master narratives”?

Plenary II: Deconstructing Abraham: The Meanings of Abraham in the “Abrahamic” Religions

Moderator: Morteza Rezazadeh (Iran)

Keynote Speaker: Reuven Firestone (USA)

Respondents: Elena Dini (Italy), Mohammad Hannan Hasson (Singapore)

This session will explore the variant meanings of story and narrative in the three Abrahamic traditions by focusing on the core story we all agree represents the essence of monotheism and faith: the story of Abraham. The three speakers will consider the person of Abraham in the scriptures of Judaism, Christianity and Islam and will argue that the Hebrew Bible Abraham is not the same as the New Testament Abraham, the Qur’anic Abraham or the Talmudic Abraham. In each sacred text he represents the quintessential monotheist, but each considers that quintessence differently. They are both in conversation and argument over the meaning of monotheism, and this tension is reflected in the ways in which the religious traditions relate to one another.

Plenary III: Stories about the Land

- Moderator: Philip A. Cunningham (USA)
- Speakers:
  - Haifa Alayan (Jerusalem)
  - Jesper Svartvik (Sweden)
  - Deborah Weissman (Jerusalem)

Following the path opened by the previous session, this plenary session will narrow down its focus to explore the Land of Israel/Palestine, the symbol-reality that plays a central role in all Abrahamic traditions. Consequently, all three traditions foster various, often contradictory stories related to the Land. Given the complexity of these stories, how is it possible to have a dialogue about the Land among people who tell and live different “stories” there? The speakers will reflect on how their personal self-understanding has been shaped by their experience of living in the Land of Israel/Palestine.

This session marks the imminent publication of the book Enabling Dialogue about the Land: A Resource Book for Jews and Christians, eds. Philip A. Cunningham, Ruth Langer, and Jesper Svartvik (forthcoming from Paulist Press), the result of a research project sponsored by the ICCJ.

Why are people in Central Europe prone to succumb to the global rise of extremist ideologies and practice, particularly neo-Fascism and neo-Nazism and practice just 30 years after they freed themselves from Communist dictatorship?

Lucia Faltin brings together a number of movers and shakers from the fields of history, philosophy, journalism, international security, and civic activism to seek an explanation. The panel takes form of a talk show, audience input is strongly encouraged.

At the start of the third millennium we see our world changing at an accelerated pace. New technologies allow for the high-speed circulation of information and create new families of thought seemingly outside the realm of space and time. Sectarian views and even lies motivated by ideologies are spread in a ubiquitous and instantaneous manner. Truth often becomes relative, reality does not seem to matter anymore. One of the major questions that arises from this reality is, What is truth? Is there an absolute truth? Can anyone claim to hold it? What factors shape the ways we relate to the other and the world as legitimate and “true”? Is it “source,” or “tradition”? If some stories bring about separation, disruption, and enmity, can they be held as true today? Our religions can provide us with resources to address these questions as religious. stories seek to establish some form of truth that relies on tradition and transmission. However, these stories themselves need to be explored critically. This is what this plenary session will strive to do. Ultimately, it will explore how the stories we hold as foundational and sacred can inform us about the world we live in and, even more importantly, how they can inform an increasingly secularized world, so that we do not fall prey to false prophets and false prophecies.

Stories to Tell and Live by: A Festival of Ideas

Moderator: George Wilkes (UK)
Speakers: Adriana Biela-Belanji (Slovakia)

Adam Gregerman (USA)
Shmuel Szteinhendler (Chile)

This concluding plenary session will not only reflect on the whole conference but also address its main questions once again, perhaps from a different angle. The panelists will ponder the following questions: What stories of the contemporary world are worth telling and living? What stories from our religious traditions can make a constructive contribution to the well-being and transformation of our societies? How does one’s own story relate to the stories of others? What positive role can stories, both religious and secular, individual and collective, play in conflict resolution and the building of interreligious and intercultural relations?
